Open and Women's Pairs Championship - statement from the WBF President

The WBF Executive Council has deliberated in respect of occurrences at the World Bridge Games held in Wroclaw during the Finals of both the Open and Women's Pairs Championships.

Having read the reports from the Head Tournament Director and the Championship Operations Director, the Council has become apprised of the unusual situation whereby the players and supposed winners recognize themselves that they failed to adequately check the scores obtained within the time scale provided for within the Conditions of Contest. Those players, rather than raise the issues through official channels, chose to air their grievances via social network sites.

Human errors, whether by competitors, referees, judges or otherwise are an integral part of any sport competition. In all sporting contests it is important to have certainty of the result that has been obtained according to the respective rules & regulations that are applied and cannot be modified despite, unfortunately, that they may have influenced the result. Dura lex sed lex - the law is harsh but it is the law.

However, the Executive Council has considered the peculiarity of the circumstances and facts of these particular cases and has expressed its view that the truth cannot and should not be ignored.

Consequent upon the advice received from the High Level Players Commission, the Executive Council has exceptionally resolved to award the titles, the gold medals and the master-points ex aequo to Auken-Welland (Germany) & Bach-Cornell (New Zealand) in the Open and to Levi-Asulin (Israel) & Pilipovic-Sver (Croatia) in the Women, without further alteration of the ranking lists.

The Executive Council therefore remits the same to the WBF Secretariat to provide the necessary executions and related communications as appropriate.

Lausanne, 29 September 2016

Gianarrigo Rona
President

A contribution from Fred Whitaker

I read with interest and admiration the achievement of Judy and Lynn in garnering 2800 from 2♦xx.

According to my medical advisers the recovery period from an even worse disaster in the same contract has been set back some years by having the spectre of 2♦xx revisited without a thorough psychological preparation.

Whilst identities of the other participants are embargoed under the 250 year rule applying to catastrophes of the magnitude involved I can say this:

My partner on the day in question, a very distinguished man of Australian bridge, is in some circles known as 'Horsham' the post code of which is 3400.

My RHO at the fateful table is competing with great success at Congress this year which marks the 20th anniversary of our swift retreat from the dizzy height of table 2 at Canberra.

LHO on the day of the apocalypse was a nervous looking man who appeared to be twitching with fright. I was confident he would not stand the redouble. Later, too late, I discovered he was the most fearless punter in Australia who was given office space at race meetings in Sydney!

Some days you just can't find the killing lead. On this hand our hero did well to avoid his longest and strongest but would have done better to choose the "unbid" suit.

Paula McLeish

I caught up with Paula and David recently returned from Poland where Paula had been playing with Pele Rankin in the Australian Women's Team. Pele is a Samoan, once a resident of Wellington. David was the coach.

The Aussie women progressed to the knockout phase, losing to USA. Paula and David described their time in Poland, the city of Wroclaw is now a cultural centre despite massive destruction during WWII.

Silver Grandmaster

Congratulations to Roger Minchin for earning the 2 A points he needed to become a Silver Grandmaster in the New Zealand Teams.

Well done Roger, only an extra 1249 A points needed to achieve Gold Grandmaster.

Directors' nightmares

Imagine being called to the table twice in one hand, first to rectify an insufficient bid and then the same player revokes.

Another call that is at least unusual was the lead out of turn by dummy.

Table etiquette for non-English speakers

At a recent club night at Akarana our session manager Julie Atkinson and Gary Chen ran a short seminar with Chinese speaking players on rules, rights, responsibilities, stop procedures, alerting, asking and answering questions.

Julie had prepared some notes (in English) for the seminar which Gary was able to render into Chinese.

Julie found it very interesting to know from the players' perspective are the issues that needed clarification. Often these related to authorized versus unauthorized information. For instance if my partner has given a wrong or incomplete explanation should I tell the opponents and if so when.

Akarana's membership with Chinese as a first language is relatively high and this was greatly appreciated by players and should make Julie's job easier too.

Other clubs who may wish for more information should talk with Gary or Julie.

Youth Test – Careful management.

Lead ♣Q.

Nico Ronson showed commendable skill in managing the trump suit.

The lead from the East hand of the ♣Q gave him a slim chance of bringing home the vulnerable doubled game. He won the lead in hand and immediately finessed ♣10, and discarded his ♥8.

One line of play that might succeed here would be to try to score low heart ruffs. For that he would need two entries to dummy to score 3 ruffs. That works on this hand because East has singleton ♠Q but could easily shorten his trumps with no benefit.

Nico took another approach leading a diamond towards his honours. East won and switched to a heart, ruffed. Now Nico played a low spade getting some initially good news in trumps. He played a low diamond, a good idea this in case West is short in diamonds, he would be ruffing a loser.

After winning his ♦Q Nico exited a diamond, West could discard a heart but Nico had a good counter to West's remaining ♠1097. He ruffed a diamond with the ♠J and played a heart from dummy

West could ruff but Nico then discarded his remaining diamond to win the last 2 tricks ♠K8 over the ♠107.

Partner you ruffed my trick – Peter Gill

Carolyn Wood and Robin Young combined well here to defeat Peter Gill in 3♣.

S	3	-	2	1	1
E	-	3	-	-	-

The play went ♦6 to ♦A, ♥10 to ♥A, ♦K (a better play is to exit ♥Q), discarding a spade from dummy. Peter ruffed ♦5 in dummy Carolyn discarding ♥4, play ♠9 covered by ♠10 and ♠K. This is the first key play as it keeps communication between the two defenders and control of spades.

Peter now exited ♥Q to ♥K. His plan here is to be able to ruff the fourth heart in dummy in his hand, by now he is sure East has long diamonds and four spades, and West holds both clubs and hearts for her bidding. Carolyn continued ♥J and Robin took control of the defence ruffing with his singleton ♣5.

He cashed ♠A crashing ♠Q but no matter, and played ♠8 to be ruffed in dummy, on this Carolyn could discard her last heart and so was able to overruff Peter and score her ♣K.

Chris Ackerley redux

Chris imagines his faithful partner has jumped to 6♣ and passes with trepidation. Douglas makes 9 tricks and the opponents agree to accept minus 1. Closer examination of the bidding pad in the actual universe reveals Chris has passed the forcing 4♣ bid.
